FIRMWARE UPGRADE USING ADDRESS CONVERSION

Abstract of the Disclosure

A system and method for upgrading a boot block of a firmware program is disclosed. A copy of a replacement boot block is transferred to a firmware device, and then the execution address is changed to point to this new location.

The replacement boot block is then copied over the original boot block. Once the copying is complete, the execution address is restored to the original location in the firmware program.